INDEX TO NAMES
from LOCAL PARISH MAPS
for the
COUNTIES of MACQUARIE
and HAWES

Introduction to the Index

The map index is an alphabetical list of names taken from original copies of parish maps held by the library. The majority of maps are for the county of Macquarie. There is a separate index for County of Hawes (see page 71). There may be errors in the transcription of the names due to the age of the material. In some instances only part of the name is given or a ? mark is added where the original proved too difficult to clearly interpret. Not all maps have been indexed.

At the front of the main index there is a list of the parishes held. This Map List gives an indication of the approximate date of the map and the in-house numbering system used. The maps are housed in the map cabinet located in the Local Studies Family History Room. All maps held are listed on the library catalogue.

The Index cover shows a map covering the numerous parishes of the Hastings area and surrounding regions. Where a parish map is held by the library it is highlighted on the cover. The numbers on this cover map are NOT the same as the numbers used in the library. There is a cross reference given on the Map List.

New South Wales is divided into 141 counties. Each county is, in turn, divided into a number of smaller areas called parishes. The parish map is divided into portions, the numbers shown on the map face. The name of the grantee or first holder is also given although in some instances these have been overwritten with another name referring to whoever has taken over the property at that time. (usually the map has a handwritten more recent date) More recent editions of parish maps do not have names marked on the face of the map but lists names on the

The index was compiled by volunteers. Thank you to Terry Browne for transcribing the material, Ken Seago for the initial data entry, and Diane de Verdic for assistance with proof reading.
